City Slowly Emerging from Shelter in Place

The new playground equipment in the Cosmos City Park can finally have kids playing on it! Woo Hoo!

Pics & commentary by Mark Minnick

The first of June showed up and with it, relaxed COVID 19 restrictions for the citizenry of Minnesota. The "Stay Safe MN" guidelines went to Phase II on June 1st and Phase III on June 10th. As of the time of this writing, Phase IV will probably start around the end of June or the first part of July. Stay tuned.

It's been a long, long wait for folks to be able to sit down and have a cold drink at Mug Shot's Bar & Grill. They all seemed pretty happy, some saying they may even order a burger & fries.

The 'big' notice on the front door of Home State Bank in Cosmos may look like a lot of stuff, but it's really not. Easy to read and easy to figure out. This way, no one can say "I didn't know".

The kids can now go to the playground and not just look at the cool stuff but play on the cool stuff! Restaurants & bars can serve folks food, liquor and beer as long as it's outdoors. Inside, there are still some restrictions on the number of people allowed.

Up to date on all of the rules, sanitized and ready to go! Leslie Degner of Leslie's Cutting Edge is ready and willing to help her customers look good and feel better once again.
Note: Folks should be reminded that she can only do so much as far as the looks go.

Home State Bank is letting customers back in the door to check on their money and do day to day banking. You can also get a haircut or some hair styling done by Leslie at the vclocal salon. This is much to the delight of hipsters, the fashion conscious and people that have had to deal with your scruffy looks.

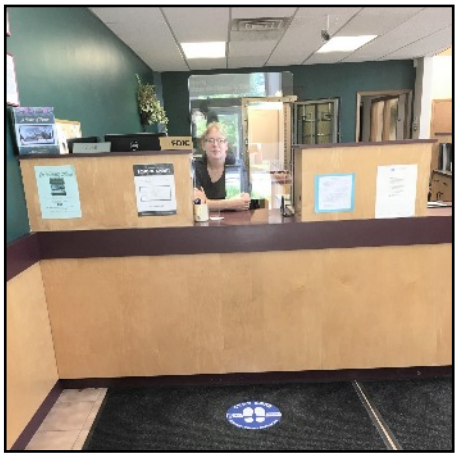

Peace Lutheran Church is streaming their Sunday services on the internets. You can watch any of the recorded services anytime on the churches own YouTube channel. Let me repeat that; Peace Lutheran has it's own YouTube channel. That's pretty cool, an unexpected benefit of COVID me thinks.

I talked to Karen Jackson, manager of Casey's Convenience Store in Cosmos. They were able to stay open during all of this, albeit with modified operating rules. She indicated to me that the masks, social distancing and other mandated rules were kind of annoying but doable.

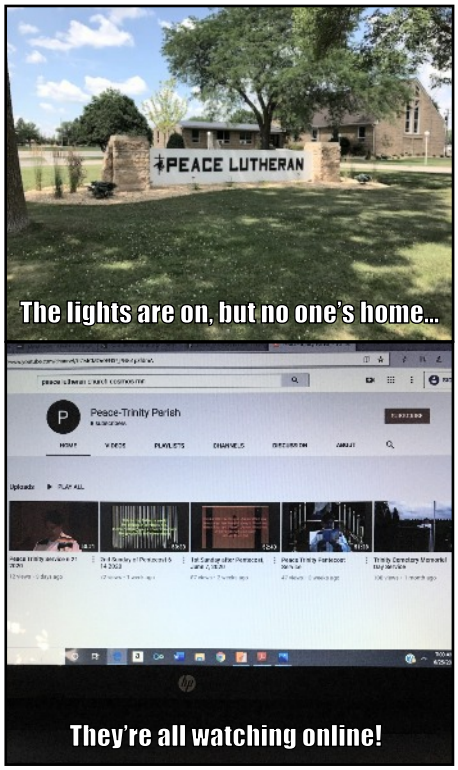

The hardest part for her was dealing with the variety of raw emotions coming from the employees, the customers and management. Really a grueling scenario day in and day out with no let up. I was a little surprised by her answer, but it made sense the more I thought about it.

Go ahead and take the time to check out and patronize the places you normally did before you were told to "Stay home". It's still a pretty neat world out there, whether your wearing a mask or not.

Some places require masks be worn, others not. If you don't know what protocol is, call and check with the place you're going to. It makes for less stress for everyone.

Diane McClain of Home State Bank is ready to serve the customer's banking needs inside the building. "Feel free to stop on by" she says, "We're here to help."

Home town church on the the laptop or the smart TV. Whoda thought.

You should still be vigilant, there is no sense contracting the virus or dragging it around. If you've been in contact with a person diagnosed with COVID 19, you don't feel good or you have symptoms - STAY HOME! Simple as that.

Hey kids, you probably shouldn't line up 50 deep to go down that new slide in the park either. Just sayin'.*

The River almost Runs Dry

Pic and commentary by Mark Minnick

It's the middle of June in 2020 and we haven't seen the rains like we have in the previous couple of years. In the past few years, the Gazette has reported on high waters overflowing the banks on the South Fork of the Crow river.

This spring and early summer has been a little lacking in rainfall. Brown lawns, dusty roads and the river at barely a trickle is the result this year. The crops that went in so early and quickly because of the dry spring are looking pretty good, so far. Just enough sub-soil moisture and great genetics I guess.

At the time of this writing, we have just received a little over an inch of rain over the previous weekend. It helped the lawns and crops but, the river has pretty much been unchanged.

But as we all know, it can start raining and not quit. Ahhh, weather in Minnesota. Don't like it? Just hang around, it'll change. Or not.

Turkey Fruit Salad

By Grace Kamrath

When the first ingredient in a recipe is mayonnaise, you have to love it. To be placed first on a list of ingredients. Wow!! I love mayo. So it would be pretty hard to ruin a recipe if it had mayonnaise in it.

I think a hidden ingredient in this Turkey Fruit Salad is ginger. It is mild but adds a bit of flavor. I have made it most often with turkey but chicken is good and even tuna. I remember serving it with some young 4-H girls way back when and they initially thought "yuck" with the idea of meat and fruit. But I think they changed their minds.

At our church in LeSueur, we had A PARADE OF TABLES much like TABLE TIME. We served this salad and it was well received.

TURKEY FRUIT SALAD

- 1/2 c. mayonnaise
- 2 T. honey
- 1/8 t. ginger
- 2 c. cubed turkey
- 1 sm. can mandarin oranges
- 1 c. chopped unpeeled apple
- 1 c. grape halves ( I prefer red but green is good too)
- 1 small can pineapple tidbits
- 1/2 c. toasted pecan halves (be sure to toast these, the flavor is fantastic)

Combine the first three ingredients. Add all ingredients except pecans. Add pecans just before serving. This recipe will serve eight or less if they know how delicious it is.

During Sunday School a young man learned the story of how God made Eve from one of Adam's ribs.
That afternoon while playing outdoors, the little guy got a terrible side ache and went in the house to lie down.
After he"d rested a while, his mother asked if he was feeling better. "No", he said. "I think I'm getting a wife."

Pic and commentary by Mark Minnick

The Community Vegetable Garden over by Peace Lutheran Church is looking great this early summer. Tomatoes, cabbage, peas and beans are just a few of the different plants soaking up the sun in the neat little food plot. Stop and take a look if you're driving by. Maybe pull a few weeds while you're at it. We don't worry about quack grass feelings. Maybe pig weed, but not quack grass.

"I like gardening — it's a place where I find myself when I need to lose myself." Alice Sebold

Highway Safety

Gary Schmidt

Editors note; Gary Schmidt, former Cosmos local and current Gazette reader, emailed me wondering if I thought the readers would enjoy an article on highway safety issues and driving this summer. I thought,"We're already germ free, why not be safe on the roadways too?" So, I emailed him back, "Show me whach ya got." Here it is...and drive safe.

A note from Gary; I've been driving truck for Cliff Viessman Inc. out of Gary, South Dakota for 30 years. A great company with great people, by the way. I've taken pride in my safety record and my love of the industry. When the South Dakota Trucking Association was organizing a Roadteam, I was nominated to fill a spot as a captain on the team. The goals were to pick a group of safety minded drivers to speak to groups and classrooms on safety, image, and essentiality of the industry. We do career events, and drivers training classes amongst other events. My favorite is the little children when you share with them how everything they use and eat everyday is the result of trucks. The following essay is a part of my own "Share the road" discussion I use with groups.

Mug shot and article by Gary Schmidt

As many of the travel restrictions are being lifted from the COVID-19 pandemic, there will be increasing traffic needs from many who are tired of being cooped up, want to get out of the house, go on vacations and just have fun again. With this in mind, here's a few suggestions to keep travelers safer on our roadways.

Perhaps the most important advice is to avoid distractions, especially with your phone. We can all agree how important our phones have become in our lives. The device can be equally dangerous with texting, social media and such. Even glancing at your phone will shift your focus from the road for five seconds. In that time your vehicle could travel the distance of a football field. A lot of problems could happen.

In Minnesota a hands-free device is not only the law, but it's a good, safe investment that allows you to have both hands on the wheel, rather than one or more juggling a phone. Also keep your calls short. Prolonged calls are a distraction as well.

While sharing the roads with trucks, avoid lingering in the blind spots around the truck. On the left side, from behind the driver's door to the drivers tire axles is a blind spot. If safe to do so increase your speed to pass the truck on the left. Make certain you can see the headlights in your rear view mirror before coming back over.

Thirty feet in front of the truck is another blind spot. Proceeding to the right side is a large blind spot area encompassing three lanes of traffic where you can easily get lost. Don't linger there. If a truck moves over to let you on, the safest move is to allow the truck to come back over to the right and then pass the truck on the left side.

The rear of the truck can also be problematic. If you can't see the truck mirrors while driving behind it, you're invisible to the truck driver. You could be in trouble if the truck needs to slow down or stop. Increase the following distance between you and the truck. The only part of the road you have control over is the area in front of you.

With this in mind, have a safe and enjoyable summer travel season!

TIDBITS

By Rick Nordin

Greetings! Hope this addition finds you safe and well. It's been a crazy month and the images coming at us on our national and local media have been mostly disturbing with a sprinkle of positive events.

With the onset of social media, such as Facebook, events are being recorded on cell phones and broadcasted in "almost" real time. This is neither good nor bad in itself. What is unnerving, the commentary of the event is not providing all the information of the event. The reality is, you and I will witness the same event and have a different interpretation based on our past experiences.

Have you ever had a discussion with someone who witnessed the same event, but was describing it different than what you remember? Exactly! That's my point. If you are married, you know exactly what I am talking about.

But here's the deal, you both are right. How can that be, you may ask? Well, humans have the capacity of thought and reason. We know 2+2=4, rocks are hard, and we need food and water to live. These are facts which don't waiver.

However, when we witness events or are part of a conversation, this is open to interpretation based on our life experiences and our personality types. I believe you would agree if we based our daily mood based on the current news, it would be hard to leave the house.

Therefore consider this suggestion, shut off the news. Decide daily how you are going to approach life. A famous quote is "Garbage in, garbage out, good in, good out". This past weekend we spent riding our iron horse around the beautiful black hills. This is our Zen. Not one person we talked to brought up covid or the riots. Everyone we were in contact with was enjoying their time in a beautiful part of our nation.

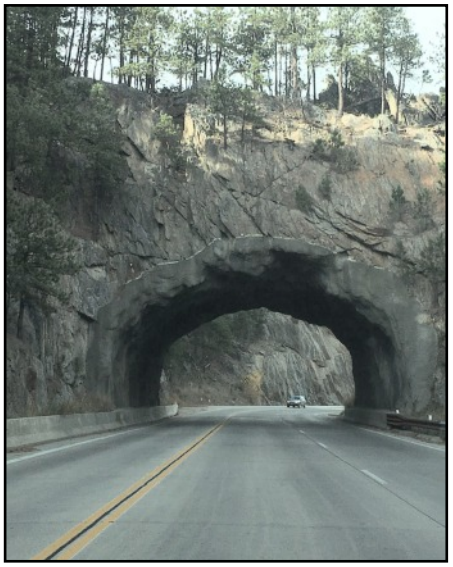

We even had a half hour discussion with a young couple from Willmar who were in the Hills with extended family for the weekend. We were sitting outside at a café when the gal said, excuse me, you look so familiar, where are you from? Turns out she is one of the receptionists at our accountant's office where we go once or twice a year. That simple question turned into a memorable and delightful time together.

I leave you with a wonderful post I saw on Facebook this past month: "Sometimes I just want it to stop. Talk of Covid, protests, looting, brutality. I lose my way. Become convinced that this "new normal" is real life. But, then I met an 87 year old who talks of living through polio, diphtheria, 3 wars, protests and yet is still enchanted with life.

He seemed surprised when I said that 2020 must be especially challenging for him. "No" he said slowly looking me straight in the eyes, "I learned a long time ago to not see the world through the printed headlines; I see the world through the people that surround me. I see the world with the realization that we love big.

Therefore, I just choose to write my own headlines. "Husband loves wife today. Family drops everything to come to Grandmas bedside." He patted my hand, "Old man makes new friend." His words collide with my worries, freeing them from the tether I had been holding tight. They float away. I am left with a renewed spirit. My headline now reads, "Woman overwhelmed by the spirit of kindness and the reminder that our capacity to love is never ending." Have a great July.

The Cosmos Public Library News

By Beth Cronk
Meeker County Librarian
Pioneerland Library System

The Cosmos Public Library is continuing to offer services, some familiar and some new. While the library itself remains closed to the public, curbside delivery, the summer reading program, and more are available to help you get what you need.

The library is offering curbside pickup during all of its normal business hours: Mondays 10-5, Tuesdays 2-5, Thursdays 2-6, Fridays 2-5, and Saturdays 10-1.

To place a request for books, DVDs, or CDs, go to the Pioneerland catalog at iii.pioneerland.lib.mn.us to search the library system's collection. We are getting deliveries from other libraries in the system, although not from around the state. When you find something you want to request, use your name, library card barcode, and PIN to request it. If you haven't set up a PIN before, you can do that as part of your first request. If you have trouble at any point in this process, call the library for assistance.

You can also request things by calling the library at (320)440-1012. Tell the staff member your library card barcode number, and they will request the things you want. You can request specific things or just something general, like a few mysteries, a stack of picture books, or some books about a particular subject.

You can also request magazines and newspapers by phone, since there isn't a way to search those in the catalog. Magazine issues will be checked out to you and must be returned. Newspapers won't be checked out to you, and you can return them if you choose, through the book drop.

When your items are ready for pickup, you'll get an email if you have chosen to get notifications that way, or you'll get a call if you haven't. Then you can park behind the library by the curbside pickup sign anytime during curbside hours, call the library and read off your library card number, and wait in your vehicle while staff checks out your materials and brings them to the chair outside.

When they go back in, you can grab your bag and go. If you walk or bike, please wait by the cones to allow for distance from library staff. If you don't have a cell phone to call with when you arrive, call in advance to schedule a time library staff can expect you. The book drop is open, so please return your library items there.

If you or anyone in your family is ill, we ask that you wait to use these services until you're well. If you need more time to return items because of that, give the library a call and we'll renew them.

This year's summer reading program is called Dig Deeper, and the theme is about investigating and discovering. Cosmos Library has recently launched this summer's program. There's no need to sign up the kids this year - just request summer reading sheets when you pick up your curbside order, or stop by outside and call the library to request a pickup of the summer reading things.

Like usual, there's a sheet for kids 3-12 and a different one for ages 12-18; if they're in the preteen and early teen years, it's really up to them which sheet they use. The kids' game sheet is simplified this year so that there's one prize for every sheet turned in.

It's Been Quite the Year

By Mark Minnick

Even with COVID 19 restrictions, the ACGC Graduation Ceremony seemed to go off without a hitch. The graduates and their immediate family sat in their own parked vehicles in the school's parking lot.

The graduates went up to receive their diploma from the administration officials, one person at a time as their name was called. Speeches and farewells were still delivered by the usual students and adults. Thank goodness it was a nice evening outside.

After the ceremonies in the school parking lot, the whole entourage proceeded to drive in a "Graduate's Parade" if you will. With parents driving, the went down to Cosmos, over to Atwater and finished up in Grove City.

Led by city officials and fire departments, they cruised around each town while honking horns, waving and celebrating the special day. From what I was able to see, it looked like a pretty neat deal. Maybe a precursor or things to come? I guess we'll see. Good luck ACGC Graduates!

"Speed of Light" Chocolate Cake

By Mark Minnick

'If I'da knowd you was coming, I'da baked ya a cake." An old saying derived from a song, (or is it the other way around?) that usually makes us smile. Baking a cake for any occasion usually involves a fair amount of time and some effort. Not so with this version of the old chocolate cake. With this being the anniversary of the First Manned Moon Landing, I thought we'd talk about how light is involved in cake making, so follow along. I'll try not to bore you to death.

The speed of light. You usually don't think about it when cooking or baking. It travels at 186,000 miles per second, by the way. Light takes eight minutes and twenty seconds to get from the surface of the Sun to the Earth. It takes one and one half seconds to get from Earth to the Moon. You noticed the second and a half delay, when mission control talked to men in orbit or on the Moon, during the Apollo program. In other words, light is pretty darned fast but, the Moon and the Sun are a long way away from us, thus the time.

Man has been cooking with light forever. Whether by fire or electrical resistance, long wavelength infra-red light is involved, which is invisible to the human eye. This is what we use to fry an egg on the stove or bake a cake in the oven.

Less than a hundred years ago, man came across another way to cook things with light. This light was shorter in wavelength, i.e., microwave light. The microwave oven became popular in the seventies as 'must have' appliance, roughly the same time that man walked on the moon. Since then, I would guess that this appliance has reheated billions of leftover meals and popped a gazillion bags of popcorn. But, to bake a cake? Folly? Blaspheme? I'm an idiot? Hmmm…

Depending on the type of cake, it normally takes about 30-45 minutes to bake at 350 degrees. In the case of a microwave cake, it takes about 90 seconds. 90 seconds…Wow! You can do a great little chocolate cake in the microwave while your guests wait!

I had run across the creation different times on the Internets but kind of poo-pooed it. Then I tried it. I shouldn't have waited so long. Pretty darned good, me thinks. Now, when someone shows up unannounced, you can bake 'em a cake at almost the speed of light.

Chocolate Cake in a Cup

Back to the Red Planet

We're getting good at this!

By Mark Minnick

I thought it quite fitting that the latest mission to the red planet, Mars 2020, would launch this month from Cape Canaveral on July 22nd. It's the same month as the anniversary of man's first moon landing in 1969. Kind of a nice coincidence. Perseverance is the latest and greatest in the series of successful NASA Mars rovers. New this on mission is a helicopter named Ingenuity that will fly around and help explore the planet's surface.

The plan is to have the lander touch down in Jezero crater on Mars on February 18th 2021. We'll just have to keep our fingers crossed that it lands successfully, as that is the trickiest part of the whole mission. I have included an overview of the mission from nasa.gov along with a pic of the atlas launch vehicle and the name plate affixed to the rover. This plate has over ten million names (including the Gazette editor's) and a bunch of essays, microscopically stenciled onto three silicone chips. That many names should keep the Martians busy reading for quite awhile.

Mars Perseverance Mission Overview

The Mars Perseverance Rover mission is part of NASA's Mars Exploration Program, a long-term effort of robotic exploration of the Red Planet. The Mars Perseverance mission addresses high-priority science goals for Mars exploration, including key questions about the potential for life on Mars.

The mission takes the next step by not only seeking signs of habitable conditions on Mars in the ancient past, but also searching for signs of past microbial life itself. The Mars Perseverance rover introduces a drill that can collect core samples of the most promising rocks and soils and set them aside in a "cache" on the surface of Mars.

The mission also provides opportunities to gather knowledge and demonstrate technologies that address the challenges of future human expeditions to Mars. These include testing a method for producing oxygen from the Martian atmosphere, identifying other resources (such as subsurface water), improving landing techniques, and characterizing weather, dust, and other potential environmental conditions that could affect future astronauts living and working on Mars.

The mission is timed for a launch opportunity in July when Earth and Mars are in good positions relative to each other for landing on Mars. That is, it takes less power to travel to Mars at this time, compared to other times when Earth and Mars are in different positions in their orbits.

Colt Clark and the Quarantine Kids

By Mark Minnick

The stay at home directives have affected folks all over the United States. No work, no school, no socializing no nothing. Stay away from those germs.

It seems that different folks have done different activities to compensate for being cooped up together day after day after day. This brings us to a family of five in Tampa, Florida who have become a YouTube sensation by singing and jammin' every day, for the world to hear and see.

"Colt Clark and the Quarantine Kids" is the name the family group that performs a new song everyday on their YouTube channel. Laid off musician and dad Colt, mom Aubree, 10 year old son Cash, 8 year old son Beckett and 6 year old daughter Bellamy make up the popular group. The viewer gets to enjoy popular tunes from many musical groups; the Beatles, Paul Simon, Creedance Clearwater Revival, Dion, The Monkees and many more. They practice a new song starting in the morning every day, then mom records the performance in the afternoon. There is no basement studio or special set up. It's all done in the family's living room, bad acoustics and all. A little editing gets done by mom Aubree and she posts it on YouTube.

The family band has acquired quite the following since it's inception in the middle of April. As of this writing, it's at over 10 million views! They've even been on "The Ellen Show", albeit remotely.

When I first saw and heard this family play, I was grinning from ear to ear as I thoroughly enjoyed the roughly three minute video. I watched one more and one more and it dawned on me - These guys are good and fun to watch, sometimes even bringing a tear of joy to the eye.

I am including the short description of the act from their YouTube page. I could write much more about this family, but I am going to make the reader go and find out more by themselves. Get on the Internet!

Since the sixties, I can remember complainers whine that, "There is nothing on TV. Just sex, violence and trash." WTH, folks, it's still with us today in 2020. Well, here's your chance to see and hear something that is pretty darned cool and entertaining. The Internet isn't such a bad place, you just gotta know where to look.

What the heck, I wasn't expecting a family band with three kids under twelve and their dad to play a great cover of Baba O'Reilly by the Who, either. Who knew?

This short description is from youtube.com

Hello everyone! We are the Clark family. Colt (the dad) is a full time musician and Aubree (me, the mom behind the camera) is a photographer and homeschooling mother to our three children. A few weeks after the shelter-in-place order started we found ourselves with a lot of extra time on our hands.

Colt is used to playing seven gigs a week, and with the shelter-in-place order, his normal workload completely disappeared. To take our minds off of everything going in on the world, Colt and I decided to film some videos of Colt playing music with the kids everyday and share them with our family and friends that we weren't able to see because of the virus.

Initially the videos were private until a few friends asked if they could share them with their families, so we decided to make them public. It took off from there. We had no idea that these videos would bring so many people so much joy, and how the positive messages, and comments we've received would in turn, bring us so much joy.

TIME WARP

With no Cosmos Space Festival this year, Eunice went back and checked out 1975. She wished she would have brought her golf clubs for the big tournament though....

Jamie Olson and Mamie Kaddatz win Space Festival top prizes

COSMOS--Winners of the two quarters of beef given away as the grand prize, was won by Jamie Olson, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Olson and Mamie Kaddatz, both of Cosmos. (A complete list of drawing winners follows this article).

The new Space Festival royalty, chosen at 6 p.m. Sunday evening just before the chicken supper was Little Miss Universe, Shannon Carlton and Man in the Moon, David Dahlk. Parents are Mrs. Cindy Carlton and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Dahlk Jr.

Other Kiddie Parade winners are pictured elsewhere in this paper, along with other Space Festival information and Festival pictures.

The Cosmos Commercial Club reported that they served over 1100 people at their chicken supper which was enjoyed by all who attended.

The Lion's Club reported a good turnout at their dunking booth. Much of the money raised is used for various community projects throughout the year.

The Cosmos Fire Department also reported a good turn out for their second Pancake and Sausage Breakfast. They served some over 300.

A new feature of the Space Festival this year was the Golf tournament.

Twenty-one youth played in the Golf Tourney on Saturday. They were divided into flights according to age and golfing ability. Results were as follows: 1st Flight - Monte Krosch (10), first place, winner of a portable radio; Brad Carlson (10), second place won three surf boards. 2nd Flight - Tim Spreiter (11), first place, won portable radio; Shane Stenberg (11), second place won a baseball and bat. 3rd Flight - Mel Macik (12), first place, won portable radio; Darin Stenberg (12), second place, won a baseball and bat. 4th Flight - Nick Peterson (13), first place, won a portable radio; Scott Blum (13), second place, won a baseball and bat.

Championship Flight - Tab Klimstra (13) from Litchfield won first place and a portable radio by shooting a 67 out of a par of 60. Benny Menton won second place and a basketball with a score of 69. Jeff Linden won third place and a tetherball with a score of 69. Benny and Jeff played off a tie. Benny won in sudden death on the first hole.

On Sunday 27 adults played in the Space Festival Golf Tourney.

Marilyn Krosch was the grand winner with a net score of 47, 13 under par. She won a set of binoculars.

Ervin Retzlaff won second place and an electric calculator.

Stan Johnson won third place and a battery operated wall clock.

Other winners and prizes were as follows: fourth - Heather Fluck, Hector, a coleman jug; fifth, David Hesser, Cosmos, a poker set; sixth, Doug Graslie, a lantern and oil; seventh, David Eastman, a 5-gallon water jug; eighth, Darrel Hensley from Litchfield, a battery operated lamp and ninth, Gary Rothstein, St. Cloud, Phyllis Grussendorf, and Don Grussendorf tied for ninth place and all won a pencil set.

Rich Jamison managed the tournament and the Commercial Club sponsored the prizes.

"Art in the Park" is a growing event as part of the annual Space Festival activities. Each year we hope to have more artists display and/or show their artwork. It is an all day event on Sunday for the artists and community. Even though the number of artists participating this year was not as many as expected, it was successful for a new event. There was a variety of artwork including: Stanza Haagenson, Cosmos, macrame, doll clothes, crocheting and etc.; Donald Peterson, Cosmos, woodwork items; Berdetta Boll, Cosmos, paintings; Blane Stenberg, Cosmos, paintings, needlepoint, caricatures; Linda Jamison, Cosmos, tie dyed T-shirts; Eileen Schraan, Buffalo Lake, ceramics; Coletta Hartung, Hector, corn husk dolls; Irene Monroe, Morris, string paintings for children; Patty Kalphake, Morris, oil paintings and Richard and Vi Olson, Lake Lillian, dolls, rugs, macrame, basket hangers.

In the softball tournament Gaylord - New Auburn won the championship game and

Tales from the COSMIC Tavern & Lounge

"Way Better Than a Tie"

Time spent in The Cosmic Tavern & Lounge is usually time well spent, a welcomed break from the craziness of the real world. Dodging virtual potholes in the gravel lot, you pull up and park close to the entrance doors, the ones with the little diamond shaped windows. Strolling in, you sidle up to the old mahogany bar and pause, waiting a bit as your eyes adjust to the minimal lighting. As your pupils dilate, you break into a smile as you notice all of the things that make this place great. A hand made sign says, "Pickled eggs & gizzards available - ask bartender". Lighted beer signs flicker a bit and tastefully done Vargas Girl pin-ups adorn the walls. There's a Twins game on the TV and they're always winning. Nothing but top shelf liquor behind the bar. A couple of patrons in the corner are enjoying big, fat homemade burgers with hand cut French fries. To top it all off, there's always cold Hamm's beer on tap. A step back in time and a good one at that. Today's tale goes back in time for a little while but, comes back to the present pretty quickly, because the present can be pretty swell too.

By Mark Minnick

I usually don't think too much about, much less remember, special days. I know my wife's birthday and our wedding anniversary but that's the extent of it. I do remember to eat and I have the waistline to prove it.

I didn't realize Father's Day was rolling around this year until #1 son texts me, asking if I wanted to fish on Saturday of Father's Day weekend. I texted back, "Always take time to fish with my son. Better than a new tie, fer sure." We planned a few things then said he'd be out Friday night.

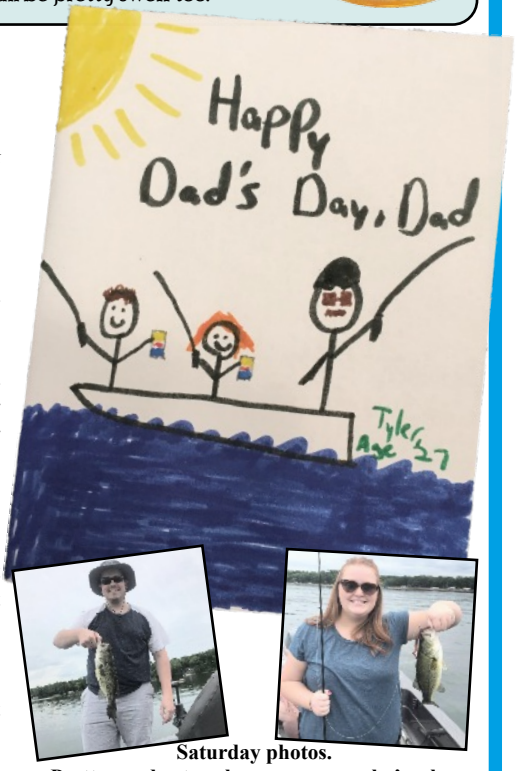

Tyler, best GF Britt and puppy Tuck rolled in Friday evening. On the way to the refrigerator, Tyler showed off the craft brews he had gotten me for Father's Day. Very nice, I told him. After opening a cold one for the both of us, he presented me with a card. Not in a fancy envelope, just the card. As I looked, I noticed that it was homemade. Wow! That brings back a flood of memories.

#1 son was raised with the sense that money is hard to come by. Times are tough in the hinterlands. Working is expected. We don't waste things or buy unnecessary crap. We cook our own meals, wash the dishes and put 'em away. A trip to McDonalds or 'Berber' King is rare. We seek out old used snowmobiles and lawnmowers to fix up and use without the cost of buying new. We buy used clothes and toys at garage sales. (I think the only new clothes we bought him were underwear and socks.)

We don't support Hallmark by purchasing their fancy cards either. We make up cards instead. A cousin's birthday, a Mother's day or for a gramma or grampa, no matter what the occasion, we make it. Everybody likes the effort that goes into a homemade card, plus it can be customized for the specific occasion. Be sure and write your age on it too, so gramma remembers after it's in pasted her scrapbook.

All of these twenty year old thoughts flooded into my head, making me smile. Back to the present, I examined the card closely. It showed Tyler, Britt and me, fishing in the boat and enjoying a Hamm's. "Happy Fathers Day, Dad" it said. He put his age on there too.

We did go fishing the next day, drank some beer, caught some fish and had a great time. My best Father's Day yet, partly because of the card, mostly because of the family. Can't wait till next year….and the new card.

Pretty good artwork, you can see who's who.

TIME WARP Whozit?

With hair salons and barbershops shut down by the state since the end of March, heads of hair have become quite shaggy. With some of the restrictions being lifted in the beginning of June, folks can again have theirs long locks shorn and dignity restored. Can't be running around looking like an animal…or a hippy.

The guy in the chair at Leslie Degner's "House of Hair" is certainly due for a trim. He originally went to city hall to buy a dog license, but they were sold out. (Dog licenses are cheaper than a haircut.) As long as he's in the chair, I wonder if he'll get a nail trim and a rabies booster? Anyway, Whozit?
